

The Big Bird Feeding Quiz

Are You Helping or Harming Our Feathered Friends?

NAME: _____

DATE: _____

- People regularly feed pigeons in a crowded marketplace. Over time, what happens?
 - a) The pigeon population increases rapidly.
 - b) Pigeons stay the same in number.
 - c) Pigeons stop coming because they don't like the food.

- A family hangs a bird feeder with sugary biscuits for wild parrots. What could happen?
 - a) Parrots develop weak bones and poor health.
 - b) Parrots become stronger and healthier.
 - c) Parrots stop visiting the feeder.

- A tourist throws bread pieces into a lake for ducks. What is the biggest problem?
 - a) Bread lacks nutrients and causes malnutrition in ducks.
 - b) Ducks eat anything and remain healthy.
 - c) The bread dissolves in water without any harm.

- Seagulls and crows gather around beachside food stalls where people throw fries and chips for them. What happens?
 - a) Birds become aggressive and steal food.
 - b) Birds stay friendly and peaceful.
 - c) Birds ignore human food and eat fish.

Skills: Spelling, Problem-Solving, Cognitive, Perseverance and Focus, Knowledge Acquisition, Analytical Thinking, Cultural Literacy

The Big Bird Feeding Quiz

Are You Helping or Harming Our Feathered Friends?

NAME: _____

DATE: _____

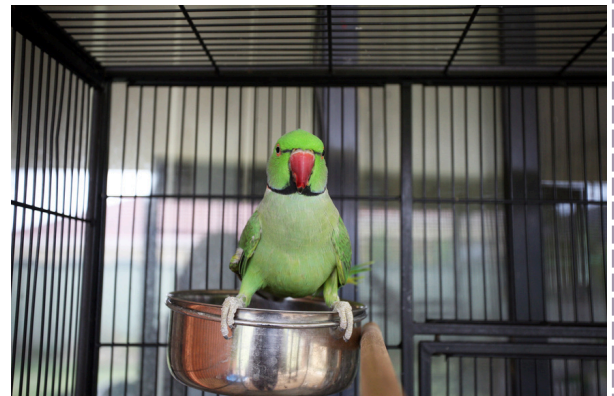

- A shopkeeper scatters grains outside his store every day. What could be an unintended consequence?
 - a) Pigeons become dependent and stop searching for natural food.
 - b) Pigeons become healthier.
 - c) Nothing changes; pigeons continue their normal behavior.

- What is a better way to support parrots in urban areas?
 - a) Provide fresh fruiting trees and native plants for natural feeding.
 - b) Give them chapatis and cookies.
 - c) Offer them rice and milk.

- Some people keep parrots as pets because they talk. Why is this bad for wild parrots?
 - a) It reduces their numbers in the wild and affects their survival.
 - b) It makes them friendlier to humans.
 - c) It helps them live longer.

- Why can feeding ducks harm water quality?
 - a) Leftover food causes pollution and algal blooms.
 - b) It helps fish and other aquatic animals grow.
 - c) Ducks clean up the extra food naturally.

- Why is pigeon poop a major issue in cities?
 - a) It spreads diseases like lung infections.
 - b) It helps fertilize the ground.
 - c) It keeps other birds away.

Skills: Spelling, Problem-Solving, Cognitive, Perseverance and Focus, Knowledge Acquisition, Analytical Thinking, Cultural Literacy

Answer Key

- People regularly feed pigeons in a crowded marketplace. Over time, what happens?

Answer: a) The pigeon population increases rapidly.

- A family hangs a bird feeder with sugary biscuits for wild parrots. What could happen?

Answer: a) Parrots develop weak bones and poor health.

- A tourist throws bread pieces into a lake for ducks. What is the biggest problem?

Answer: a) Bread lacks nutrients and causes malnutrition in ducks.

- Seagulls and crows gather around beachside food stalls where people throw fries and chips for them. What happens?

Answer: a) Birds become aggressive and steal food.

- A shopkeeper scatters grains outside his store every day. What could be an unintended consequence?

Answer: a) Pigeons become dependent and stop searching for natural food.

- What is a better way to support parrots in urban areas?

Answer: a) Provide fresh fruits and native plants for natural feeding.

- Some people keep parrots as pets because they talk. Why is this bad for wild parrots?

Answer: a) It reduces their numbers in the wild and affects their survival.

- Why can feeding ducks harm water quality?

Answer: a) Leftover food causes pollution and algal blooms.

- Why is pigeon poop a major issue in cities?

Answer: a) It spreads diseases like lung infections.